Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-3, 5-9, 15 and 16, drawn to polypeptides, classified in class 530, subclass 350.
- II. Claims 4, 10-14, 17-25, drawn to polynucleotides, expression vectors and recombinant host cells, classified in class 4345, subclass 69.1.

Inventions I and II are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions are isolated polypeptides and nucleic acid constructs comprised of polynucleotides, expression vectors and recombinant host cells. These inventions are structurally unrelated chemical compounds and have different functions and uses. The polypeptides may be used in an assay or may be administered to treat infection while the nucleic acid construct may be used to encode a peptide.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification and searches required for each, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).

Also, it is drawn to the applicant's attention that claims 5 and 6, directed to polypeptides depend from claim 4, directed to a polynucleotide. It is suggested that the applicant review these claims to determine if the applicant made a typographical or other error. For similar reasons, claim 10 is also confusing because it recites a protein factor comprising a polynucleotide.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Claims 1-6 encompass more than one distinct amino acid sequence with different corresponding primary structures. The proteins are structurally different; therefore, the applicant must elect a specific sequence for examination. The elected claims will be examined only in-so-far as it pertains to the elected SEQ ID NO:.

Claims 13-25 encompass polynucleotides encoding more than one distinct protein. The applicant must select a specific sequence for examination.

Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the peptide or nucleic acid that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

This election requirement is not to be construed as a species election, as these compounds do not share a common primary structure and appear to be patentably distinct.

Art Unit: 1653

Should applicant traverse on the ground that these different compounds are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.
